

Adreanne Ormond

Adreanne Ormond is a Senior Researcher with The Starpath Project at the Faculty of Education, The University of Auckland. Preceding this position, she was a Post Doctoral Research Fellow with the University of Otago for a Marsden funded project “In Transition—How children of the economic reforms articulate identities at the child/adult border.” Previously, she was a Post Doctoral research fellow with The University of Auckland, Medical School, Tomaiora Research Centre for Amplifying Youth voices: The synthesis of two major youth research studies on taitamariki. She has extensive experience in research concerning Maori and ethnic minority youth and has contributed to seven major research projects. Awarded a PhD in 2004 in Education from the University of Auckland, Dr. Ormond has published and presented her research in the national and international conference arena. She was awarded the Te Amorangi National Maori Academic Excellence award from the University of Waikato, and is of Rongomaiwahine, Ngāti Kahungunu, and Tuwharetoa iwi.